The authors would like to make the following corrections to the published paper [1]. The changes are as follows:

(1) Replacing the Acknowledgments:

Especially we want to thank Oubbol Oung (Gemeente Rotterdam, Department of Innovation, Information, Facilities and Research), Lutz Kosack (Stadtverwaltung Andernach, Department of Urban Planning and Construction Management), Cecilie Bergmann (Oslo Kommune, Agency of Urban Environment), Moritz Bellers (IBA Heidelberg) and Capote Rodríguez Amelia (Instituto de Investigaciones Fundamentales en Agricultura Tropical) for fruitful discussions on city needs (Table 1) and on the living lab ideas (Figure 3). The finally implemented Living Labs might largely differ from the drafts described here as the EdiCitNet-Living Labs will be co-created and co-implemented during the EdiCitNet project funded by the European Commission (776665). We thank the three anonymous reviewers for helpful comments and suggestions to improve this manuscript.
